The Michigan Department of Health and Human Services, through the Michigan Assoc. of CMH Boards, has provided funding for this initiative through a Federal Community Mental Health Block Grant

Adults with co-occurring mental illness and substance use disorders have far worse outcomes in employment, hospitalization, housing, and criminal justice involvement than their single disordered peers. This co-prevalence has been studied since the 1980s, yet despite this substantive increased risk, until the 21st century, most service systems were organized to treat individuals with a single disorder, excluding those with co-occurring disorders, or providing sequential or parallel treatments that were incompatible or in conflict with each other. Integrated co-occurring treatments, offer superior outcomes to parallel or sequential treatments, and call providers to develop interventions to assist individuals in moving toward recovery for both illnesses simultaneously. Integrated co-occurring providers will learn about the research on integrated care including Evidence-Based Practices (EBP), and ways to develop stage-matched assessment, treatment planning, and treatment interventions for adults with co-occurring mental health and substance use disorders.

Participants will be able to:

1. Understand the development and research behind integrated co-occurring services, and the targeted outcomes intended.
2. Understand staging and stages of change, as well as how to use staging tools with clients and treatment teams to decide on appropriate interventions.
3. Rehearse completion of a contextual and longitudinal assessment for individuals with more than one chronic illness.
4. Develop 2 examples of goals, objectives, interventions, and discharge criteria for common co-occurring needs.
5. Understand the process of assuring fidelity using the Dual Disorder Capability Mental Health Treatment (DDCMHT) toolkit.

About the presenter: Jennifer Harrison, PhD, LMSW, CAADC is a social work faculty member in the College of Health and Human Services at Western Michigan University. Jennifer has been in clinical and administrative practice for over 20 years, and has teaching expertise in direct practice, field education, and social policy. She has designed inter-professional courses and presented internationally on advanced quantitative analysis of mental health implementation. Her clinical work is focused on integrated medical and behavioral health using evidence-based methods. Jennifer's research interests include social and economic justice, co-occurring mental health, substance abuse, and medical needs among adults, peer services, and food insecurity/sovereignty.
